California may not be supplying all of the food for the eastern markets, but she is supplying a good proportion. During the year 1929, only 280,000 cars of refrigerated freight were sent out to the world markets.

Good news for the motorist. Various companies in the auto industry are financing a plan to scrap approximately 400,000 automobiles that are a menace to life and property. Of this number, 26,450 are to be taken from the roads of California. Just how the plan will work out remains to be seen, but it certainly is a noble experiment.

Parking some cars along the curb will be just like letting your prize dog out on the street without a license. Whenever you lose your heap you will have to get in touch with the "autocatcher" as well as the police. Maybe it wasn't stolen but just removed for the public good.

And if the person who is going to be in charge of removing those cars from the roads in this section will drop around some afternoon we'll be glad to whisper a couple of numbers in his ear that may prove of real interest. If he takes our advice there is one cross word puzzle fan around this office who will have to walk to work.

The way that Oakland grand jury is beginning to dig back into the past we wouldn't be surprised any day to read a headline that they were investigating the rumor of "who won the war?"

All right some of you high-toned boys. Think this one over. Civilization is tending toward degeneration because of the biblogical decay of superior stock according to Dr. John Alfred Mjoen, noted Norwegian biologist who spoke in Wheeler auditorium recently. Of course the readers of this paragraph and those attending the meeting were excepted, but isn't it terrible the way the rest of the world is deteriorating?

There aren't many war stories that are worth the paper they are written on, but for the benefit of some of you red legged cannoneers, if you want to read a real one, "Cannoneers Have Hairy Ears," written by Robert J. Casey, will give you several hours of real entertainment and remind you of some of the old days.

The book by Casey is not a sexy book, with the war in the background as an excuse to splatter a lot of filth around that wouldn't be permitted in other publications. It is a good chronicle of several months of real action as experienced by a regiment of light artillery.

Someone got his oars all crossed about Arbor day yesterday. We saw nice flowery stories and composite pictures, illustrating just how Richmond streets would look after being planted with trees. Yes, there were a great many trees planted—in print. But with the exception of a few scrub willows which we pushed into the ground yesterday morning, hoping that they would take root, we didn't see any of the muchly heralded Arbor day observance. Some of these boys ought to keep a date book or hire a secretary.

3 REPORTED DEAD IN GALE

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Mar. 7—(U.P.)—Sodden rains pattered down on Mississippi valley tonight, adding to the suffering of hundreds made homeless by the first tornado of the year.

The winds swept a trail of devastation through widely scattered parts of Louisiana, Arkansas and Mississippi, areas only recently recovered from a disastrous flood. At least three persons were killed and 50 were more or less seriously injured.

The tornado skipped madly over the whole district, leveling a village here, smashing an isolated house there and leaving a maze-like trail of wreckage in its wake. Telephone lines generally were reported out of order and only meager information of the damage was obtainable.

Gregory, a town in east central Arkansas, apparently felt the brunt of the storm. Nine persons there were hurt and 20 buildings were razed. The whirling cloud bounced next to Boyle, Miss., where two negroes were killed, several injured and many plantation houses wrecked.

The gale tore through Harris, La., several hours later, to leave one man dead and 20 others injured in the debris.

Heavy rain and hail accompanied the storms.

RICHMOND CHASE REVEALED IN WARREN FRAUD CHARGES

With the indictment of Clyde Claude Warren, 31 in San Francisco yesterday, it was revealed how Mrs. Carmelita Kendall made a vain effort to halt Warren's flight to Scotland after he had alleged to have swindled her out of $51,000.

Mrs. Kendall declared that she chartered a speed-boat and came to Richmond to intercept Warren and his bride. At the railroad station here, she said, she got on the train but Warren had barricaded his drawing room in the train and wouldn't come out.

Mrs. Kendall, heir of the Carmel Fallon estate, about which centers sensational litigation, alleged that Warren persuaded her to invest all her available cash in a Mexican fish-fertilizer concession in which he had only a fictitious nterest.

When the grand jury returned an ndictment of grand theft against Warren, San Francisco police started to work and traced Mr. and Mrs. Warren to Scotland. A request that Warren be held was cabled to the Edinburgh police.

3 BODIES TAKEN FROM WRECKAGE OF PLANE

PARTY LED BY WOMAN FLIER

SAN BERNARDINO, Mar. 7—(U.P.)—The wreckage of a once graceful air liner that crashed into a rain swept mountain canyon 13 days ago was located by a posse today, holding in its unburned framework the bodies of its crew of three men.

The ship, of the Western Air Express, was wrecked while being "ferried" back to Los Angeles from Kingman, Ariz. After a long search, the debris was seen from the air late yesterday by Dudley Steele and Mrs. Juanita Elois Burns, Los Angeles fliers.

Mrs. Burns led a posse of 30 men into the San Bernardino mountains, near Lake Arrowhead, at dawn today. Overhead, Monte Shelton, Western Air pilot, cruised between the scene of the wreck and the posse, indicating the trail.

Several hours were required to extricate the bodies of the three victims—James Dole, pilot, Albert Beiber, co-pilot, and John Shelton, steward.

The big liner had been completely destroyed. A wing tip was found on the highest peak of the mountains in the vicinity. A search of two hours disclosed the pilot's compartment, smashed like an accordian and containing the bodies, almost a half mile away. The bodies were placed in a canvas and were removed to Victorville for an inquest.

The possemen said that the plane apparently had crashed into the peak while traveling at a fast speed. It did not burn. Doles had flown in numerous storms before. Last fall he arrived in Albuquerque, N. M., 30 hours late with a load of passengers after landing during a snow storm.

The dinner was served as one of the regular six-thirty dinners held each month by the pyramid.

During the dinner, each of the members was obliged to tell a Scotch joke, with Louis Epstien carrying off all honors by telling his Scotch joke in a "yiddish" dialect.

The committee in charge which included George Smith, chairman; George Black, William MacDowell, Homer W. Patterson and Carl Alexander, served the dinner, each attired in full Scotch costume even to the kilts.

J. W. Smiley, toparch presided at the meeting, and arrangements were made for an entertainment on March 21.

RUM BUYING DECISION TO BE APPEALED

BOSTON, Mar. 7—(U.P.)—An appeal to the United States Supreme Court will be filed tomorrow to upset a decision made today by federal judge James M. Morton, Jr., that the purchaser of liquor commits no criminal offense under the national prohibition act, Assistant United States Attorney Elihu D. Stone announced.

Stone prosecuted the case against James E. Farrar of Watertown indicted by a federal grand jury on Feb. 7 on a charge of purchasing liquor for beverage purposes. Today Judge Morton handed down an opinion sustaining Farrar's motion to quash the indictment against him.

The case involved the purchase of two pints of liquor by Farrar, a street railway employe, from Rank Rotondo in the latter's Cambridge store. It is believed the first test case of its kind under prohibition.

Judge Morton's opinion recited the fact that the government sought to convict Farrar under section 6, title 2 of the National prohibition act, which in substance decrees that no person shall manufacture, sell, barter, transport, etc., any liquor without first having obtained a permit from the commissioner to do so.

In its findings, the court sustained the contention of Farrar's counsel that this section refers to permittees, only, such as druggists, hospitals and others, entitled legally to buy or sell liquor under permit.

FAMOUS ACE QUITS NAVY

WASHINGTON, March 7.—UP—Lieut. Alford J. Williams, former football and baseball star, who has flown 266 miles an hour, faster than any other American, submitted his resignation today to the navy.

Williams announced in his resignation effective in two months, that he would organize a plant to build a plane to recapture the world's speed record for the United States.

Williams two days ago was ordered to sea, a transfer that would have ended for three years at least his dream of recapturing the world's speed championship. For years he has been the leading racing pilot in this country. Lieut. "Jimmy" Doolittle of the army who resigned from the service a few weeks ago to go into commercial aviation was considered the only other in Williams' class.

Williams holds the American speed record of 266 miles an hour, made at Mitchell Field, N. Y., in 1923 over a three-kilometer course. Last year A. H. Orlebar of England set a new mark at Cowes, England with 357 miles an hour.

Manila Strike Nearing End

MANILA, P. I., Mar. 7—(U.P.)—An end to the strike of several thousand Filipino students was seen today with the issuance of statements by Gov. Gen. Dwight Davis, Senator Quezon and other native statesmen. An appeal to the students to recognize discipline and leave the settlement of their grieveances in the hands of proper authorities seemed to have a subduing effect. The students protested against certain alleged insulting remarks made by an American teacher.

MANY MAY DIE FROM LIQUOR

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., March 7.—UP—Drinks of poison "jake", popular low priced intoxicant, affected more than 300 persons here tonight with a mysterious malady that paralyzed the victims.

More than 250 persons were stricken today at their homes where they frantically sought advice from physicians who could promise them no relief. At least 50 more were in hospitals and clinics where experts attempted to diagnose the cases and determine whether the malady would be fatal.

No deaths had occured although physicians reported many victims who had noted only slight muscular twitches early today were rapidly becoming paralyzed.

All the victims told authorities the illness followed drinking of jamaica ginger distributed by bootleggers and "blind pig" drug stores.

A federal ban was placed on shipments of jamaica ginger from Kansas City and St. Louis warehouses late today. Authorities said the ban would remain until specialists are able to determine the cause of the affliction.

ENDS LIFE UNDER TRAIN

MARTINEZ, March 7.—J. A. Lavigne, 51, of Oakland, early this morning threw himself under the wheels of a Southern Pacific train at Port Costa. He was dead when extricated, his body nearly severed at the waist.

Illness is believed to have been the cause of Lavigne's suicidal act. He was just returning from Portland.

Southern Pacific officials were told by a porter that yesterday Lavigne had attempted to throw himself from the train at a point in Oregon.

According to witnesses of the suicide, Lavinge walked beside the foremost car as the second section of the train was being pushed from the ferry Solano. Without any warning, witnesses declared, Lavigne threw himself under the wheels.

MARGUERITE MOOERS MARSHALL

I. Father And Son

Perhaps the best that I can do,
Having vainly broken my wings,
Is to show him how I foolishly flew
In the claws of ravening things,
Is to teach him how to avoid the snares
Which caught and conquered me,
That he may sweep through the upper airs,
Masterful, happy and free.

Then, with my shattered pinions trailed,
And scarred from my fruitless wars,
I may rejoice that, because I failed,
Bravely and safely he soars;
Noteless, alone, in a humble place,
With eyes exalted though dim,
I may see him lighted with heaven's grace
And ride in the skies with him!

II. To My Daughter

Do not forget me, child! The time will come,
And come too soon, when all there is of me,
Of this compounded personality.
So slowly built, when the residuum
Of act and thought and yearning—the last crumb
Of me—will be the relics in your mind
Of my old deeds and words which you will find
Graved in some wrinkle of your cerebrum.

Remember how, when walking on the street,
When you were three, we found the alphabet
On signs above the shops, remember too
How in my fearful arms I gathered you,
Infant and woman grown, and it was sweet—
Do not forget me, child, do not forget!

"Jealous Women"—Or Men?

ONE of the most interesting things about news, to the intelligent woman who reads it, is the illumination of fact and experience which news often casts on tradition and theory as applied to the sexes. Two recent news stories, put side by side, show what we mean.

You know the current phrase "jealous women"?—the implication being that jealousy is far more a feminine than a masculine trait. That is the theory, the tradition. Very well. Now, reflect, first, on the announcement the other day that Mrs. Audrey Loder Coward will renounce a yearly income from $800,000 in order to marry again. Her first husband, John Coward, willed that, if she remarried, the one-third of the income of his fortune which she had been receiving should go to their infant son, who was already receiving the other two-thirds. Nevertheless, Mrs. Coward, according to her own announcement, will become the spring bride of Wingate Carroll.

This is simply the latest of many cases in which a dead hand penalizes the widow for remarrying. Not in this case, nor in many another, of course, is it possible to say with certainty that the motive of the man who makes such a will is a rather gruesome post-mortem jealousy. Yet a woman may ask why any man—especially one dying, as did Mr. Coward, at the age of twenty-eight—should assume the right to set up any barrier or penalty to his wife's marrying again? If that masculine point of view is carried to the limits of logical consistency, it would seem to end in the interesting custom of suttee, native to India—the burning of the widow on her husband's funeral pyre.

IN STRIKING contrast to many a man's dog-in-the-manger antipathy to the remarriage of his widow is the attitude of many a woman. This attitude also has just been illustrated in the news, and the case forms a curiously interesting parallel to that of the Cowards.

The nine-line will of Anna B. Lundstrom was filed the other day in Brooklyn. In it, she bequeathed her bonds, securities, jewelry and other effects—her entire property, valued at $5,000—to Andrew, her husband. And she added this significant concluding sentence:

"He is wonderful and must marry again."

Many women know of cases where, on her deathbed, a wife urges her husband to do that very thing—she has even been known to recommend some specific second mate! Hardly ever does a woman ask her husband, no matter how much they love each other, not to remarry in case of her death. The more she loves him, in fact, the more her consideration for his happiness outweighs post-mortem jealousy.

She knows that "a sorrow's crown of sorrows is remembering happier things." She understands, moreover, that, for many natures, constant contemplation of loss is not only agonizing but impossible. As grass grows again on shell-ravaged battlefields, so the passage of time and the resilience of nature make the desire for human happiness spring once more from the ravages of human grief. The woman who loves her husband and who knows that she must leave him alone would not chain him by a promise to perpetual loneliness. She wants him to be happy. She wants some one to take care of him—even if she cannot.

"Jealous women" there may be. But, when it comes to interference with the destiny and desire of a living mate by post-mortem prohibitions and penalties, are there as many "jealous women" as there are—jealous men?

The World's Window

By Pierre Van Paassen

PARIS, February.

A Real Locarno

This vast world of ours is a small place after all. This is a flat and shopworn platitude we know, but it is true nevertheless, as the following incidents, or coincidents rather, may serve to illustrate: One raw day in July, 1918, a reconnoitring patrol, of which we formed part, was sent out to see whether it would be feasible for the brigade to cross the Cambrai Canal that day without too much trouble. Trench warfare was over at that time. The patrol set out, walked past the advance posts in the pitch dark, until within about 1,000 yards of the canal banks, and then proceeded the rest of the way more warily, that is to say, in the manner of the beasts of the field, on hands and knees. Before we reached the water, a miserable sickly dawn surprised us. The enemy also spotted us and opened up with a machine gun which the Sergeant swore was the one that had been taken from us the day before. Two of the patrol were promptly hit somewhere in the legs. They made a quick round about face and, leaning on each other's shoulders, started back for the line saying: "Well, goodby, be brave soldiers, we'll see you 'apres la guerre'." The machine gun fire soon grew so intense that the entire patrol, after a hasty council of war behind a clump of bushes, decided to execute what the Generals call a strategic retreat. In doing this two more were wounded, only more seriously. In the meantime, back at the advance posts they had discovered that something was amiss and a runner came to tell us that a lorry would be waiting at the crossroads near the hamlet of Beaupre to take back our wounded, if we could get them out that far. We managed to drag the boys out, but as we were shoving them in the lorry, a shell came over from a German quick firer and hit the vehicle right in the snoot. The Germans apparently knew the location of that road crossing better than we did. Mixed with the flying shrapnel went a million pieces of the car's machinery. Personally we were flung up in the air and then landed backward on a chunk of steel. This somewhat numbed us. Eleven of the patrol, among them the first two wounded, were killed outright.

We revived sufficiently a little later to see some Germans looking over the debris of our car. They had crossed the canal. Helped by some of them, the remnant of the patrol was brought under in a nearby half ruined farmhouse. And there we found ourselves sitting in a corner musing on the chances of fate which had made prisoners of us. Firing was going on outside and from time to time the German stretcher bearers brought in some of their own wounded. This went on till nightfall. When it got dark the place was quite full of wounded, and the firing outside had redoubled. Some Germans of the Intelligence Service came in later and questioned us. One of them was an amiable fellow, who distributed some good cigars. "They're from the stock of a Russian Grand Duke in Warsaw," he said. He also said he thought we would be evacuated that night if possible and shipped to a prison hospital in Germany.

Yet at that moment, as he spoke, there was heard a formidable Anglo-Saxon oath in the doorway. Four or five soldiers crowded in the opening, bayonets leveled. They were Canadians They were, what shall we say, a little exhilarated. Canada served rum to its troops. It was potent stuff. The foremost of the soldiers hadn't any tunic and one of his puttees was missing. His shirt was in tatters. We subsequently learned that they belonged to the Canadian Mounted Rifles, who, upon reaching France, had had their horses taken away, a fact which they said had caused them to transfer their spurs from their heels to their elbows in order to be able to scratch their backs the better. Anyway, here we were, liberated after having been virtual prisoners for the better part of a day. And the tables turned on the Germans who were with us in the old farmhouse.

Now the rest of the story. The other day we were reclining for a spell on an easy chair behind a sidewalk brasserie on the Boulevard Montparnasse in Paris, when we noticed a gentleman who kept on eyeing us so strenuously that we almost grew uncomfortable under his stare. Finally the man came over and, holding out an open cigar case, he said: "Perhaps you will have another cigar?" We looked at the man frankly amazed. But as he smiled most genially, we proceeded to help ourselves to one of his gold-banded cheroots. While we did so, he added: "You remember Beaupre? I brought you a cigar there that evening!" Then the scales fell from our eyes and we recognized our benefactor of that harrowing day back in '18. And then we had more than cigars, you may be sure. We had a real Locarno.

Fear Is Contagious

"MY CHILD is scared to death of dogs," a friend told me. "She makes me go all around the block whenever she sees one." When I asked my friend if she, too, feared dogs, she admitted that she did, adding: "But I don't go into a panic like Rose does." Of course not. This woman, in the course of a lifetime, has learned some self control and does not react in the same manner as her child. But I feel confident that Rose first learned to fear dogs when she saw her mother draw back or tremble when one approached. A well-known psychologist experimented with a large number of infants. None of them showed any fear of animals. Does this not prove that these fears are learned, very often through the example of other people?

Many children have been taught to fear thunder storms in the same manner. When a child sees a grown-up go into a closet or hide her head in a sofa pillow, he naturally concludes there is something to be afraid of.

Most adults have some pet fears. Surely we do not want to pass these on to our children! We must strive with all our might to conquer our fears; or, if this is impossible, not to exhibit them to our little ones. Fears are not inherited. They are "caught."

If our children have already "caught" fears from us, we have to help them overcome these destroyers of happiness and success. If we can conquer our own fear sufficiently to pat an attractive looking dog, our child, after a time, may be induced to do likewise. In addition, we can talk kindly about our friends' dogs and tell the child stories of "good doggies." After both parent and child have overcome their fear to some extent, giving the youngster a pet dog will complete the cure. He may not be very friendly at first, but if the animal is not forced upon him, he will gradually overcome all timidity and learn to love his pet.

Fear of storms may be treated in much the same way. We must control our own fears and explain the storm to the child, trying to get him to see the beauty of the lightning, &c., as he watches from the window. I know several parents who have overcome their own fear in trying to help their children to conquer theirs.

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" it an old saw. Let us always remember this and strive not to exhibit fear before our little ones!

"I DON'T like to go to school. Dad, why do I have to go to school?"

"So you will study hard and play hard and grow up to be a big man."

"Did you go to school and study hard and play hard?"

"Yes, I went to school, and I certainly played hard, but I suppose I didn't study as hard as I should have done."

"Did the ashman go to school?"

"Not very much, I'm afraid."

"Isn't he a big man?"

"Why, no, of course, not.'

"Isn't he bigger than you?"

"Yes, in that way. I didn't mean mere physical bulk. I meant a big man, a great man like Lincoln."

"Are you a great man?"

"Don't be absurd, Son. Of course, I'm not a great man."

"Was Lincoln a great man?"

"There never lived a greater."

"Did Lincoln go to school?"

"Very little."

"Why do I have to go to school?"

"Oh, go to bed."

A DISH A DAY

Piquant butters and sauces aid the menu-maker in her endeavor: setting an interesting table from the seasonable, and therefore more reasonable, foodstuffs in the market. The list of meats and fish seems longer and the menu more varied by reason of the change a sauce or butter makes in the finished dish.

NANCY DORRIS

The request for some of the simpler sauces and butters comes from an inexperienced menu-maker whose interest in her table outweighs her culinary skill. How to make the savory butters to spread over steaks, chops, cutlet and fish, how to prepare old-fashioned mint sauce and how to concoct a raisin sauce for ham or tongue she does not know.

Creamed butter seasoned with herbs, fish or condiments is the secret of

SAVORY BUTTER

Four tablespoons butter
Two tablespoons lemon juice
A sprinkle of cayenne and salt
Yield: Over one-fourth cup

Work the butter to a cream and add the lemon juice drop by drop; season with salt and cayenne. Chill until time to spread over steak or chops, or broiled fish.

Some variations of the butter are:

Watercress (four tablespoons minced cress added to the butter).

Anchovy (four to six boned anchovies rubbed in).

Parsley (one to two tablespoons minced parsley).

Devil (one teaspoon each Worcestershire sauce and liquid mustard).

Horseradish (three to four tablespoons drained horseradish).

Mint (six to eight tablespoons minced mint).

Pimento (three to four tablespoons minced pimento).

Old-fashioned mint sauce for roast lamb or saddle of mutton may be prepared in several ways. Some prefer mixing the mint with the hot vinegar and sugar and allowing to stand an hour before heating in a double boiler, while others pour the hot vinegar and sugar over the bruised mint leaves.

MINT SAUCE SIMPLE

Four tablespoons minced or bruised mint leaves
One-half cup vinegar
One tablespoon sugar
Yield: About three-fourths cup

Use only the tender mint leaves for a well-flavored sauce. Stir the sugar into the hot vinegar and pour over the mint leaves. Serve. Or let the mint mixture stand an hour and reheat in a double boiler.

Fresh pork, smoked ham and boiled tongue dressed with raisin sauce wins approval from the family group. Very easy to prepare is this

RAISIN SAUCE

One cup seedless raisins
One cup cold water
Three-fourths cup sugar
Juice of one orange
Juice of one lemon
Yield: About two cups

Simmer the washed raisins in the water ten minutes, add the sugar and bring to a boil. Stir in the fruit juices just before serving hot with the ham or tongue. A teaspoon of cornstarch mixed to a paste with a mite of cold water and stirred into the sugar, water and raisins makes a slightly thick sauce. After the sauce thickens add the citrus juices and serve hot.

The Beauty Shop

By Frances Olivier

SOME power the gift has given us to see ourselves as others see us. Our faces, at any rate. To see our skins as our worst enemies see them—and as our best friends won't tell us—all we need is a true mirror, a good light and the good sense to be honest with ourselves. And this, my friends, is the first and most important step to beauty.

© FRANCES OLIVIER

What do we mean by a true mirror? The finest sort of mirror. One that does not show green when we tilt it and look close at its edge—one that reflects the skin in its natural tint.

Last week the Beauty Shop had quite a little to say about the women who are too generous with their rouge. We laid the blame to a loss of perspective. On second thought, part of the blame, a large part, should go to the mirror. You see, it is like this: Nearly all mirrors have a greenish cast. Naturally, the faces that look out from them take on somewhat the same hue, a kind of bilious look. This happens even to skins that are in the pink. Now what does the owner of the face do? Doubt her mirror? Never? She tells herself, "My! I look sallow these days. I must put on more rouge," and she suits the action to the word. Result: a grotesque.

Nor is over-rouging the only sin against facial art that the "green" mirror is responsible for. It leads women into choosing totally wrong shades of powder—for example, pinky tones where the individual skin demands creamy tones. Powder, as you know, must be of a tone to harmonize with the natural tint of the skin, if it is to create the illusion of beauty. But how can one possibly learn the natural tones of one's skin from a lying mirror?

On this subject of mirrors we have another suggestion to make. Dressing table equipment should include a magnifying mirror. It tells more than the normal eye can see about the true condition of the pores, about future wrinkles and future blemishes. In other words, it reveals the things that are going on beneath the skin surface. It can even prophesy a growth of superfluous hair.

You may call it looking for trouble, or you may find it awfully discouraging, but you must admit that it is one sure way to avoid heartbreak in the months and years to come. Really, you know, it's all in the point of view.

Home Made Bluing

INFERIOR bluing often causes rust stains. Most housekeepers prefer the liquid bluing, and this can readily be prepared, so why not make your own bluing and make sure it is pure?

At a paint shop get one ounce of Prussian blue and dissolve this in one quart of water which has boiled three minutes. When the bluing becomes cool strain it through a cloth and bottle it. Always shake it before using.

TELLING THE WORLD

THE LATEST HOLLYWOOD PLOT

THE Hollywood staff of the Fox Film Company collaborate on a movie scenario:

"Good morning, Jake. How are you?"

"Fine, Sam. Have you heard anything from the head office in New York to-day?"

"No, I guess matters are still tangled up. Say, how about the plot for this new super-picture?"

"I got a pip. Listen to this outline: The heroine is a little country girl with loads of sex appeal. She goes to the city and the first man she runs into is Halsey Stuart & Co—I mean Herbert Montmorency, the menace. She falls in love with him and he offers to build a new voting trust for her."

"A new voting trust? I don't get it."

"Did I say voting trust? I meant a new bungalow for her. That's it—the villain, Herbert Montmorency, offers to build a bungalow for her. Then the heroine threatens to throw him into a receivership—I mean a lake—but Montmorency sooths her by giving her a bunch of proxies—I mean orchids."

"It's good so far. How does the plot develop from there?"

"Well, shortly after, the heroine meets two other fellows."

"What are their names?"

"Blair & Co. and Lehman Brothers. No, no! Their names are David and John—two fine, upstanding American youths. One night the heroine is out riding horseback all alone on the prairie when suddenly she looks around and discovers she's pursued by a band of minority stockholders. I mean a band of Comanche Indians. I find it hard to concentrate sometimes, Jake."

"Well, go on. She's being pursued by a band of Comanches."

"Right. She looks around and the Comanches are galloping down on her. She realizes she needs refinancing at once. I mean she needs reinforcements. So she digs down into her holster and pulls out her Class A non-voting stock. Or rather, Jake, she pulls out her trustees' weapon. I mean her trusty weapon."

"I know what you mean. What happens then?"

"She shoots the gun off in the air, hoping it will attract a hearing before a Federal Judge. I mean, hoping the Federal troops will hear it."

"Then what?"

"Meanwhile the Comanche Indians are closing in on her. She realizes she will either have to give herself up or float a new issue of debentures."

"How's she going to do that?"

"Do what?"

"Float a new issue of debentures?"

"Did I say that? No, what I meant was she'd either have to give herself up or float across the creek. While she's debating what she'll do the Indians retire the 7 per cent. preferred stock behind a clump of bushes and come out with an emergency issue of common shares. Do you follow me?"

"Perfectly."

"She tells them she, William Fox, will never surrender and invites the Indian chief into a bankers' conference. The chief wraps his blanket issue around him and agrees to trade his 51 per cent. holdings for a string of glass beads. Just then the United States Marines ride up with $65,000,000 in short term notes. They battle the Indians, suffering a shrinkage of $20,000,000 in securities and for the fadeout the heroine is being wedded to Fox Theatres A by a Federal Judge after several postponements."

TIMELY TOPIC DRAMATIZED IN FILM

Can a girl successful in business find happiness without marriage? This topic has long been a favorite with feature story writers of newspapers and magazines. "The Bachelor Girl," the Columbia production synchronized with dialogue and music which opens for today only at the Fox-California theater, marks its entrance into the realm of motion pictures .

The story is typical of the lives of millions of young couples. Jacqueline Logan plays the part of Joyce, a beautiful and successful secretary who loves Jimmy, a handsome but shiftless young stock clerk with her firm. When Jimmy, played by William Collier, Jr., loses his job through his own carelessness, it is Joyce who gets him another one unknown to him. She leaves her position to work for Jimmy and is tireless in her efforts to help Jimmy get ahead. It is through her tact and ability that Jimmy puts most of his deals over. Jimmy, of course, receives credit for them and advances very rapidly in his new position. He makes new social associations and begins to neglect both his work and Joyce. Thus, Jimmy with his egotistical character destroys the happy dreams Joyce has built up. But the truth will out. Jimmy's inefficiency is discovered and he is fired. He and Joyce part.

Two years later find the tables turned. Joyce has come up the ladder of success and is now a "bachelor girl." Jimmy is on the downward path. This situation results in a quality of drama that is profoundly moving. But Joyce cannot achieve happiness in spite of her economic affluence. She is still in love with Jimmy. Jimmy has realized during his separation from Joyce that she is "the one and only girl" for him. When a chance meeting brings them together again, they rush into each others arms and swear eternal love and fidelity.

A Krazy Kat cartoon and talking comedy are also on the program.

Many Enjoy Church Play

A large audience crowded the auditorium of the First Christian church last night to witness the presentation of "The Feast of Belshazzar" by the Wright California Players.

The play dealt with ancient Babylon and the drama of its capture by the Persians under Darius. The events leading up to the feast where the handwriting upon the wall appeared ,were presented by the players, whose gorgeous costumes and dramatic training enabled them to do justice to the ancient tragedy.

The play was given under the auspices of the Keystone class of the church for the piano fund.

RICHFIELD GAS WINS FAVOR IN EAST

WINTER PARK, Fla., March —California gasoline and Florida waters proved the winning combination here at the opening hydroplane races over the Mt. Dora course.

Elmer H. Johnson, nationally-known speed boat pilot at the wheel of the fast "Sparrow" powered with Richfield and lubricated with Richlube motor oil, easily copped first place in the Mt. Dora regatta.

CALIFORNIA OIL, GAS USED IN RACE

LOS ANGELES, March 8.—News dispatches from Florida where a series of regattas and hydroplane events are taking place, and giving the news of another victory by Elmer H. Johnson's fast boat, argument the recent series of victories which drivers using the Richfield-Richlube 'power partner' combination have scored in Florida aquatic speed events.

The first of these sweeping victories occured on Feb. 21 when the Royal Poincina trophy was won at Palm Beach by Gibson Bradfield's "Buckeye II."

Several days later, according to a wire received by Richfield officials here from Elmer H. Johnson, there was a double victory scored for the users of Richfield gasoline and Richlube motor oil when Johnson's "Sparrow" won the Bradley trophy and the unlimited class. Bradfield's boat finished third .On the same day, the Bradfield "Buckeye II" also won first place in the limited class.

Johnson, in his wire, stated:

"Both Bradfield and I used Richfield's oil and gas, setting new records for both classes at Palm Beach."

Success For Key Plan Forecast

A. J. Lundberg, vice chairman of the Key System readjustment committee, announced last night that sufficient payments had been received in accordance with the plan for readjustment to assure its success, and that arrangements had been completed for an advance to holders of deposit receipts for Key System first mortgage bonds equal to one half of the principal amount of such bonds. This advance, according to Lundberg, will be made upon presentation of the deposit receipts to the American Trust company, San Francisco, or the California Trust company, Los Angeles, in accordance with a circular which was mailed last night to all registered holders of deposited first mortgage bonds.

Babies On Trip To Santa Fe Yards

The lure of the huge tons of steel, which they know only by the name of "choo-choo" recently resulted in an extensive pilgrimage by Norman and Mildred Ledford, ages five and three respectively.

Their father, H. M. Ledford is a Santa Fe fireman, and with the fond intentions of seeing "papa" and the "choo-choos" the pair set off from their home at 583 Second street enroute for the Santa Fe yards, via velocipede and kiddie car.

Arriving at the yards, the kiddies were gazing in awe at the tremendous mountains of steel belching forth smoke and flame when discovered by Santa Fe officials. Richmond police were notified and Officer Charles Mahnke and O. Hobbs of the Santa Fe returned the children to their home.

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."

Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless; and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

School Trustee Scores Profits From Children

MARTINEZ, Mar. 7—Declaring that he intends to voice a protest at the next board meeting, Rex. L. Boyer, clerk of the Martinez grammar school board of trustees, today scored the presenting of child entertainment under the auspices of the P. T. A.

Characterizing as "exploitation" of children, the recent entertainment given by pupils of the Martinez grammar school under the auspices of the P. T. A., Boyer declared "The Parent-Teachers Association, to my mind, is no different than any other organization when it comes to use of children in presenting entertainments to raise money.

"There may be nothing illegal about it, but certainly if the P. T. A. can utilize student production for profit, there is no reason why other organizations, lodges, and such, should not do likewise and that wouldn't be considered."

The entertainment to which Boyer objected was given last week by fifth grade pupils and netted the association $22.50.

Boyer also objected strenuously to sales conducted in conjunction with the entertainment.

He stated, "The sale was conducted at the school and cakes were sold to the students. These same students could go to their homes and obtain the cakes for nothing."

ROARING DAYS OF FRONTIER PICTURED

When Texas seceded from Mexico and declared itself a free and independent republic in September, 1836, it was flying the famous Lone Star flag. This flag bore two horizontal stripes, one red and the other of white on a field of blue in which was set the white five pointed star, emblem of the American settlers who fought against the tyranny of the Mexican government for fredom.

The lone star flag waved over the Alamo when Davy Crockett made his sensational stand against the armies of Santa Anna near San Jacinto on March 6, 1836. Early the following month General Sam Houston came to the rescue, routed the enemy and afterwards became the first president of the republic.

Later Texas was recognized by the United States and in 1854 was made a member of the union.

The Texas Rangers were organized in 1832 and bore the brunt of the conflict when Texas separated from Mexico. Later they protected the frontier from Indians and since have protected the border.

The activities of these men form the background for Zane Grey's romantic and thrilling story, "The Lone Star Ranger" which has been adapted for the all talking screen by Fox Movietone and in which George O'Brien and Sue Carol portray the leading roles. It is the attraction at the Fox-California theater starting tomorrow.

A Fox talking news and talking comedy are also on the program.

CAR SETS NEW HILL CLIMB RECORD

LOS ANGELES, March 8.—Officials of the contest board, American Automobile association, held stop watches on a completely equipped, strictly stock Erskine sedan with Ralph Hepburn, famous racing ace at the wheel, as the flying Erskine sped up the mountain curves of "Old Baldy" the other morning. After the tumult and shouting died away—for the dawn stunt on the hairpin grades of San Antonio canyon had drawn a fair sized little crowd of speed enthusiasts—a check showed the Erskine had set a brand-new record for the moutain.

The time was announced by G. F. Stephenson, technical representative for the contest board, as 10 minutes and 44 seconds, smashing a previously made record, also officially timed, over the same course.

The car was powered with Richfield, California's famous racing gasoline, which had previously been used by Hepburn, he stated, on many record-breaking stunts of the speedway or roaring road.

Following the Erskine success, Hepburn took a stock Studebaker roadster over the same 7.1 mile course and, timed unofficially, the latter car was checked in at eight minutes, 51 215 seconds. This car was a Studebaker president eight also using Richfield gasoline.

The course followed for both Erskine and Studebaker speed tests was from the toll-gate arch near the canyon bottom to the arch leading into Ice House Canyon, above Camp Baldy Lodge. There is, altimeters showed, a difference of 2500 feet in elevation between the start and the finish.

Fred Wagner, picturesque and veteran race starter and official, now retired here on a southern California orange ranch, acted as one of the timers. Other officials were W. M. Claus and Waldo Stein. Proimnent in the group of spectators were M. E. Hewins, Studebaker branch manager for southern California; Ed Wintergust, racing expert for the Richfield Oil company; F. Clair Thomas of Riverside, and Arthur W. Marcy, general manager for the Pasadena Studebaker distributor.

And Another Record Falls

POWERED by Richfield gasoline, an Erskine sedan recently set a new record for a climb up Mount Baldy near Los Angeles. A few minutes later a Studebaker eight model set an unofficial record for the same climb. Upper right shows Ralph Hepburn, racing ace, being congratulated by A. A. A. officials at the end of the climb; in oval Hepburn is shown driving roadster and lower right shows Richfield gas being poured into the car.

400,000 Cars To Be Junked In United States

Thirty-six thousand unfit automobiles will be removed from Pacific coast highways during the coming year in an effort which is part of a national highway safety plan which is being undertaken by various companies in the automobile industry, as announced by the National Automobile chamber of commerce. The program will involve the expenditure of approximately $1,26,000 on the Pacific coast. Nationally, the motor companies plan to scrap 400,000 old automobiles in 1930, involving an expenditure of approximately $15,-000,000.

The number of cars which it is estimated will be scrapped in each of the states on the coast is as follows:

California	26,450
Washington	5,560
Oregon	3,520

The program is characterized as "perhaps the greatest single safety move in industrial history," by Alvan Bacauley, president of the automobile chamber, and former chairman of its street traffic committee.

"This widespread experiment will strike right at the heart of the unsafe vehicle problem by eliminating a huge block of those cars which are in the poorest condition," says Macauley.

One of the hazards of the highway situation has been the rattle-trap car which keeps reappearing on the road after it has presumably been sent to the discard. The aim of this program is to guarantee the actual scrapping of the vehicle. The plan will be worked out by each company participating, in line with its general sales policies and the volume of its production.

R. H. Grant is chairman of the committee which worked out the details of the program. Other members include: C. H. Bliss, J. E. Fields, Paul G. Hoffman, H. W. Peters, Courtney Johnson and Edward S. Jordan.

FRANCE HARD HIT BY FLOOD

PARIS, Mar. 7—(U.P.)—The Garonne river, carrying its own and the Tarn's flood waters to the Atlantic, washed out a huge bridge at La Maguistere and two smaller bridges at Feneyrols and Cazals today as the sudmerged regions to the east buried their dead and took stock of damage.

The Chamber of Deputies unanimously voted 100,000,000 francs flood relief to the stricken departments of southern France where the destruction was greatest. The cabinet added 50,000 francs out of its own pockets, and Pope Pius XI also sent 50,000 francs to aid the sufferers at Montauban. Both houses of Parliament voted to make tomorrow a national day of mourning, with flags at half-mast.

The Ministry of Interior said it was informed that perhaps 300 had perished in the floods, but press estimates at the scene were 400 and more. The ministry placed the estimated property damage at 600,000,000 francs (about $24,000,-000).

The Prefect of Tarn-et-Garonne, the department containing the worst hit cities of Montauban and Moissac, announced 205 persons lost their lives and nearly 1500 homes were wrecked in his district.

Warnings were sent to the eastern departments around Bordeaux that the Garonne was traveling towards the sea at "tremendous speed" and that its waters resembled the great Mississippi flood.

President Gaston Doumergue and Premier Andre Tardieu left Paris on a special train tonight to direct distribution of the government's relief contributions in the flooded zones.

Four Missing In Duluth Fire

DULUTH, Minn. March 7.—UP—A fire sweeping the Lowell block, across from the Duluth New Tribune, tonight, was reported to have taken the life of three children and one woman.

Several persons were taken to a hospital.

Screen Leaders Pay Income Fines

LOS ANGELES, Mar. 7—(U.P.)—After entering a plea of guilty to a charge of failing to pay a proper income tax and evasion, Raymond Griffith, screen comedian, was fined $250 in federal court here today. Henry King, director, was fined $400. Both settled the deficit in full.

MEXICO WILL WAGE WAR ON RUM

MEXICO CITY, Mar. 7—(U.P.)—The progressive elimination of alcohol sales and the abolition of gambling exploitation in Mexico were cited by President Pascual Ortiz Rubio today as two social goals toward which his government will work.

Discussing the policies of his administration in a public statement for the first time since his inauguration, the president devoted much time to plans for social betterment of Mexicans, especially by regulation of bars and casinos.

Ortiz Rubio outlined to the United Press correspondent five main points in internal and international policy, the first of which involved infusion of morality and efficiency into the machinery of justice.

Scores Drink

"The moralization of our people occupies the government's most serious attention," the president said. "To obtain that end we will act with all necessary diligence and energy. Our recent recommendations for prohibition of exploiting gambling institutions went to all territorial as well as state governors. I consider alcohol one of the worst enemies of civilization and it must be eliminated progressively from the country."

The second point was exploitation of Mexico's natural resources and riches, in which connection he reiterated his belief in cordial relations between the United States and Mexico.

"Investment of foreign capital here in such a way as to favor economic activities of the country and by men who have honest commercial intentions, will be welcomed," he said. "We will give capital all the protection it needs within the law."

Farms Increase

Thirdly he referred to increase in agricultural production, which the government proposes to sponsor, and, fourthly, to a vtst extension of the national highway system.

The president said the government plans, as a fifth point, the immediate solution of labor problems and this point he described as directly linked with the highway construction project which will give many men employment.

The administration's campaign against liquor was brought into special prominence when it was learned that Gov. Jose Tapia, of the northern district of Lower California, had sent a lengthy memorandum to Secretary of Interior Emilio Portes Gil, arguing for retention of the gambling casinos and expressing the opinion that the only practical measure in connection with prohibition would be to restrict the bars to the present number.

Gil Silent

Portes Gil continues to maintain silence in regard to the government's campaign, but the El Nacional correspondent at Tia Juana reports that Tapia's memorandum said "conditions in Lower California are special."

The governor emphasized the necessity of having casinos for tourists and said the gambling places were all functioning under permits from Mexico City and were making regular contributions to public instruction, and so forth. He emphasized that local residents, especially workmen, were protected from harmful effects of the casinos and that many other phases of local government there have improved. He mentioned specifically improvement in the "short order" divorces at Tia Juana, stating that the civil register judge who did a tremendous business recently, had been removed.

CANCER CLINIC OPENS MONDAY

SAN FRANCISCO, March 7.—UP—Official opening of the first Coffey-Humber cancer clinic to be established on this coast will take place Monday.

Dr. William C. Haffler, city health officer, in making this announcement said that 22 patients would receive glandular treatment by the two scientists, Dr. Coffee and Dr. Humber, on the opening day. It is planned later to enlarge the clinic to accommodate 60 persons.

The clinic is being established at the city's expense for the purpose of permitting Dr. Coffey and Dr. Humber to continue their experimental work in the newly discovered treatment of cancer.

The clinic will be officially observed by representatives from Stanford and the University of California. Doctors from all sections of the continent will also conduct observations.

Evangelist To Speak Before Young People

"How the First Boy and Girl Went Wrong" will be told to a larg egathering of young people today at the Salvation Army's headquarters by Col. John W. Ccusins, known throughout the west as the "Young People's Evangelist." The story will deal with the happenings in the Garden of Eden.

The afternoon meeting will be open to all young people between the ages of seven and 16 who hold tickets distributed by leaders of the Salvation Army. Adjutant Keen declared yesterday that Army heads have been busy all week giving out hundreds of these tickets, and announced that a special treat will be served the gathering after the entertainment.

Colonel Cousins will be accompanied by Mrs. Cousins and assisted by Staff Captain and Mrs. J. Roe. Roe is director of young people's work in the Golden Gate division, which has headquarters in San Francisco.

The evangelist will remain in Richmond to deliver a message of special interest to the public at 8 o' clock tonight.

Inhalator Saves Life Of Baby

Dr. Clara Spalding, local physician, who since Monday has been directing the work of two special nurses in an attempt to save the life of a two months old gypsy baby, today emerged victorious in her fight against death.

The baby, Anna Diemetro, was brought to the hospital early Monday morning in a comatose condition, by its nearly distracted parents.

Under the direction of Dr. Spalding the baby was given inhalator and oxygen treatments day and night since then. Yesterday it was announced that the crisis was past in a severe case of bronchial pneumonia.

Moore Annulment Suit Granted

The marriage of Jesse Moore of Richmond to Grace C. Moore was yesterday annulled by Superior Judge McKinzie in Martinez. Annulment was asked by Moore on the grounds that his wife was not divorced from a previous husband at the time of their marriage in Vallejo in 1925. Moore was represented by Tsar Calfee of Richmond.

Two Steamers At Richmond Wharves

Two steamers docked at the Richmond wharves yesterday.

At the inner harbor the Jacox of the Christenson Hammond line docked to load a cargo of steel for the north.

At the outer harbor the steamer Sydic, General line, is loading oil for Australia.

LOCAL ACTORS PRESENT PLAY FOR P. T. A.

The large audience that crowded the Richmond Union high school auditorium last night was loud in its praise of the cast of characters that presented "Her Husband's Wife," an amusing three-act comedy.

The play was presented in a professional manner by a cast of local actors. And every one of the characters played his or her part in a manner that brought tremendous applause at the end of each act.

Mrs. Lura Kent, in the character of Irene Randolph, was all that could be desired. Isaac Lester as John Belton, displayed an acting ability that was delightful, as well as surprising.

Mrs. Virginia Bryant gave a brilliant interpretation of her role of Emily Ladew. Gervase C. Browne portrayed the role of Stuart Randolph in a manner worthy of the professional boards. Allen J. Moore as Richard Belden, played a sympathetic role and Mrs. Margaret Stuart was excellent in her role of Nora.

Between the acts the Richmond Union high school orchestra presented a number of selections that were well received.

Much of the credit for the creditable presentation of the comedy can be given to Mrs. Zelda Chapin, who directed the production. Walter Moore was property manager; Mrs. J. H. Narvaez was production manager and Boy Scouts served as ushers.

The play was given for the benefit of the Richmond council of P. T. A.

HIGH 9 LOSES FIRST GAME OF SEASON

The diamond aggregation of the Richmond union high school suffered a 9 to 8 defeat at the hands of the University high school nine last night at Bushrod park in the first contest of the local high school baseball season.

Richmond started the contest in fine style by garnering three counters in the first canto. Babich brought in Degnan and Sanfilippo by hitting the pellet over the right field fence. However, the Oaklanders retaliated by crossing the home plate four times in the last half of the first inning.

Richmond maintained its high hitting standard in the second period by bringing in three counters. A sing'e from Degnan brought Ball home. Then young Babich, whose hitting faculities handed a big surprise to the fans, again hit a four bagger, bringing in Sanfilippo and Degnan. However, University high tied the locals by the end of the third inning.

Three Fanned

Arata, University twirler, fanned three Richmond swatters in succession in the fourth. The Oaklanders were also unable to add to their score in the fourth inning.

Richmond had no better luck in the fifth inning, while the Oaklanders netted two counters the last part of the same period.

A double by Heise brought Rol'ino home for Richmond in the next canto. Babich then made a neat job of three aspiring University sluggers.

Last Inning Rally

A hectic last inning rally was made in the seventh by the locals, who were at that time one point behind the Oakland outfit. Marcos popped out to the University twirler. Rosano walked, but was sent back to the bench on an attempted steal to the second bag. Rogers then gained first on a nicely placed hit in the short stop's territory. Richmond's hopes rose when Juillerat walked, and Rogers went to second.

Only one Richmond boy, Rollino remained to have his chance at the platter before Babich. Richmond's heavy hitter, could again come to the p'ate. However, Rollino fanned and Richmond's chances of victory went glimmering.

Richmond union high school's hitting was above par in last night's battle. The locals gained 16 hits to their opponents nine. Richmond's loss was mainly due to lapses in the watchfulness of its otfielders. Beno started chucking for the local outfit, but was replaced by Gordon Lemon in the third. Lemon's responsibility was assumed in the sixth by Babich, who sent three Oaklanders back to the bench in succession.

Babich, Rogers and Heise were the heavy hitters for Richmond in last night's clash. Babichs' two homers were probably Richmond's greatest swatting assets. Rogers and Heise were both credited with three long hits.

Richmond union high school will again place its baseba'l squad on the diamond next Friday when it wi l clash with the San Leandro high school nine on the local high school lot.

Foreign Names Bring Tangle In South Court

SAN BERNARDINO.—The name of Hermosillo will be unpopular in local courts for some time.

It seems that someone of that name shot at a party of Los Angeles tourists for turning down the wrong street. While this might have been an old Spanish custom in the Hermosillo family, the tourists did not understand, they told police.

The police took into custody one Merced Hermosillo and he was bound over to Superior Court.

A man named Jose Hermosillo also was in jail while immigration officials investigated his status. As he could not speak English well, he couldn't inform the court of the mistake made when they brought him out for trial on charges of assault with deadly weapons. He managed to make it clear that he was Jose, not Merced, but the court changed the name and continued the trial.

It was not until Judge Allison was questioning the jurors that the truth came out. Constable Sawyer informed the court of its error. He told them that Merced was the man they wanted, not Jose.

U. S. To Arrest Arm Smugglers

TUCSON, Ariz., March 7.—UP—Federal agents in El Paso Saturday will seek to arrest several persons indicted here by federal grand jury on charges of conspiracy to transport munitions into Mexico during the Escobar revolution, according to John. C. Gung'l U. S. district attorney.

Although Gung'l would not disclose the number of warrants that are expected to be served in El Paso, he said most of the 25 indictments returned were for persons believed to be in the Texas city.

Leaders of the revolution last spring, including Jose Escobar and several Americans, are named in the indictments.

All persons arrested will be brought to Tucson for trial Gung'l said.

He reported seeing many goats, mountain sheep, caribou and deer in the territory, but the cougar reduce the number of wild game considerably, he wrote.

Shainwald Sued By Chinese For $20,000 Damages

HONOLULU, T. H., Mar. 7—(U.P.)—The alleged desecration of the traditional reverence of Chinese for the dead has resulted in the filing of a $20,000 suit for damages against Ralph Shainwald, of New Rochelle, N. Y.

The suit was filed today on behalf of Wong On, Chinese, who charges Shainwald unlawfully desecreted the body of Wong Kam.

Wong On, in his complaint, asserted he was first cousin and sole relative in Hawaii of the deceased whose body allegedly was disinterred by Shainwald. It is alleged that the body was disinterred while Shainwald was searching for the missing viscera of his sister, Mrs. Marion D. Sevier.

Shainwald said this was done because employes of the Borthwick undertaking parlor said the viscera was placed in the casket with the Chinaman for cremation.

Disinterrment took place June 25, 1929.

The complaint against Shainwald stated that his agents had "with force of arms, unlawfully broke and entered into the grave of said Wong Kam; dug up the soil of same and disturbed, disinterred, desecrated, violated, polluted and efouled the dead body of said Wong Kam" and that therefore plaintiff was subject to "great pain, suffering and mental anguish" and that the plaintiff became "sick and sore and disordered and has suffered great bodily pain and anguish and nervous distraught and unable to sleep and will continue so and has been prevented from attending to his ordinary vocation in life."

No action has yet been taken by the sheriff's office to hold an autopsy of Mrs. Sevier, admittance to which procedure Shainwald has demanded.

TROJANS BEAT NORTHERN CAGERS

LOS ANGELES, Mar. 7—(U.P.)—University of Southern California defeated the University of Washington basketball team, 46 to 31 in the first game of the Pacific coast intercollegiate playoff series here tonight. At half time the Trojans were fairly well in front with a 24 to 16 lead.

Led by Frank Smith, U. S. C. took the advantage early in the game. The contest started off at a fast pace, Caldwell of U. S. C. scoring almost before the referee had ended the opening whistle.

At one point Washington led eight to 5 but the advantage was short lived for Smith, Mortenson and Gardner got to work and ran the score up to its 24 to 16 status at half time.

From this score it will be noted the Huskies got only eight points, between the time they lost the eight to five lead and when the half ended. Until the final few minutes of the second half, Washington's attack was still more ragged. At one time U. S. C. led by 17 points. With the situation well in hand, the Trojans sent a completely new lineup into the game.

Y.L.I. CAGERS IN FINAL GAME TUESDAY

Culminating an unusually successful season, the Richmond Y. L. I. basketball team will play its final game of the year Tuesday night, when it clashes with the Isle City Institute of Alameda in the Oakland Technical high school girls' gymnasium.

At the present time the game Tuesday night promises to be one of the fastest this season, as both teams are expected to play hard, fast basketball in an endeavor to win the final contest.

The local institute and the Alameda aggregation have each lost two games so far this season, although Richmonds' higher scores during the year gives them a slight edge in the dope.

Richmond Institute has been practicing in the Roosevelt junior high school gymnasium once a week, and Capt. Helen Gately, declares that the local girls are ready to "do or die" Tuesday night.

A win for the Richmond group will place them in third place in the Institute league; Oakland and Berkeley Institutes occupying the top positions.

In eight games the Richmond girls have won six, losing only to the league leaders, Oakland and Berkeley. In these eight games, Richmond amassed a total of 207 points against 111 for its opponents.

Both the games lost were by close scores the locals losing to Oakland by a score of 13 to 20 and to Berkeley by a score of 25 to 30.

Richmond Institute has defeated Noel, Gleeson, Oleum, Laurentian, Hanna and Petaluma Institutes all by decisive scores.

The Richmond squad is made up of a fast group of players, including Cecilia Desmond, Helen Maloney, Irma Chattleton and Mae Berk, forwards; Louise Novarini, Alice Maloney and Mary Gately, centers; and Agnes Campbell and Capt. Helen Gately, guards.

The GREEN GODDESS
by LOUISE JORDAN MILN

Copyright, 1922, by Frederick A. Stokes Company

"The Green Goddess," starring George Arliss, is a Warner Bros. Vitaphone picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Dr. Basil Traherne's airplane, carrying Major Crespin and his wife, Lucilla, to their children in Pahari, is forced by fog to land in the Himalayas in the hostile country of Rukh. Traherne is friendly to Crespin, whom he has kept from being cashiered from the army, and is in love with Lucilla. When they learn that three of the Raja's half brothers are to be executed in India for a political murder, they are fearful of what their own fate may be. But the men are near quarreling despite their danger. In the Raja's English valet, Watkins, they recognize an English soldier forced to flee from India.

CHAPTER XXI

WHEN the silence had lasted so long that all their English nerves were tortured, and cried for relief, any relief, Major Crespin broke it, trying to speak naturally.

"It surely," he said, "can't be so very far, since you had heard of the sentence passed on those assassins."

The Raja smiled slightly. "I am glad, Major," he said smoothly, "that you have so tactfully spared me the pain of re-opening that subject. We should have had to come to it sooner or later."

After an embarrassed pause, Traherne spoke slowly.

"When Your Highness said they were your brothers, you were of course speaking figuratively. You meant your tribesmen."

"Not at all," the Raja replied; "they are sons of my father—not of my mother."

"And we," Mrs. Crespin cried impulsively, "intrude upon you at such a time! How dreadful!"

"Oh, pray don't apologize," the Raja begged formally. "Believe me, your arrival has given great satisfaction."

"How do you mean?" Traherne demanded quickly. There had been nothing but menace and hardness in the Rukh's last sentence.

"I'll explain presently," the Raja promised. "But first—"

Crespin interrupted rashly, blundering in the accredited British way. "First, let us understand each other. You surely can't approve of this abominable crime?"

"My brothers," the Raja said with an enigmatic smile, "are fanatics, and there is no fanaticism in me."

"How do they come to be so different from you?" Lucilla Crespin asked him.

"That is just what I was going to tell you," Rukh answered. "I was my father's eldest son, by his favorite wife. Through my mother's influence I was sent to Europe. If only our women knew what that does to us! My education was wholly European. I shed all my prejudices. I became the open-minded citizen of the world whom I hope you recognize in me. My brothers on the other hand, turned to India for their culture. The religion of our people has always been a primitive idolatry. My brothers naturally fell in with adherents of the same superstition and they worked each other up to a high pitch of frenzy against the European exploitation of Asia."

"Had you no restraining influence on them?" asked Traherne.

"Of course I might have imprisoned them—or had them strangled

"You defend this devilish murder?"

back of his other hand. "This mosquito that I have just killed is to me far more admirable than a whole lifeless universe. What do you say, Major?"

"I say, Raja," Crespin replied lazily, "that if you'll tell that fellow to give me another glass of Kummel, I'll let you have your own way about the universe."

"But what," Mrs. Crespin asked, "if the mechanism, as you call it, isn't dead? What if the stars are swarming with life?"

"I'd rather not suppose it," Rukh asserted quickly. "Isn't one inhabited world bad enough? Do you want it multiplied by millions?"

"Should you like the sky to be starless?" Lucilla Crespin asked him in a low voice. "That seems to me—forgive me, Raja—the very word of impiety."

"Possibly, Madam," the Raja Rukh said with a grave laugh. "How my esteemed fellow-creatures were ever bluffed into piety is a mystery to me. If men could only be bluffed by the Raja above, how much less would they be bluffed by us rajas below. And though life is a contemptible business, I don't deny that power is the best part of it."

Lucilla rose and moved to the loggia opening. "There is the moon rising over the snowfields," she said. "I hope you wouldn't banish her from the heavens?"

"Oh, no—I like her silly face"—he had followed Mrs. Crespin. "And she's useful to lovers and brigands and other lawless vagabonds, with whom I have great sympathy. I am an Oriental, you know. Besides, I don't know that she's so silly, either. She seems to be forever raising her eyebrows in mild astonishment at human folly."

Crespin stirred impatiently, and said, insistently, if a little thickly, "All this is out of my depth, Your Highness. We've had a rather fatiguing day. Mightn't we—"

"To be sure," Rukh replied, "I only waited until the servants had gone. Now"—solicitously, always the perfect host—"are you all quite comfortable?"

"Quite," his guests assured him.

The Raja lit a fresh cigar slowly, then stood with his back to the fire. "Then," he said leisurely, "we'll go into committee upon your position here."

"If you please, sir," Crespin said. "I'm afraid," the Raja spoke regretfully, "you may find it rather disagreeable.

"Communications bad, eh?" Crespin inquired more briskly than he altogether felt. "We have a difficult journey before us?"

The Raja of Rukh smoked a moment thoughtfully before he replied very, very slowly, a cryptic cold smile on his tawny face, "A long journey, I fear—yet not precisely difficult."

"If you resent his bigness, what do you say to his littleness?" Traherne objected. "The microscope, you know, reveals him no less than the telescope."

"And reveals him," Rukh added, "in the form of death-dealing specks of matter, which you, I understand, Doctor, are impiously proposing to exterminate."

"I am trying," Traherne amended, "to marshall the life-saving against the death-dealing powers."

"To marshal God's right hand against his left, eh? or vice versa," the Raja demanded. "But I admit you have the better of the astronomers, in so far as you deal in life, not in dead mechanism." He slapped a palm sharply down on the [redacted] them. [redacted] rising, "the less we intrude on your hospitality the better. If you will be good enough to furnish us with transport tomorrow morning—"

"That," the Raja interrupted him suavely, "is just where the difficulty arises."

"No transport, hey?" Crespin's tone was bullying now.

"Materially it might be managed," the Raja said with an amiable shrug; "but morally I fear it is—excuse the colloquialism, Madam—no go."

"What the devil do you mean, sir?"

Lucilla, trying to cover a little her husband's blunder, asked gently, "Will Your Highness be good enough to explain?"

"I mentioned," smiled the Raja, "that the religion of my people is a primitive superstition. Well, since the news has spread that three Feringhis have dropped from the skies precisely at the time when three princes of the royal house are threatened with death at the hands of the Feringhi government—and dropped moreover in the precincts of a temple—my subjects have got it into their heads that you have been personally conducted hither by the Goddess whom they especially worship."

"The Goddess—?" Lucilla asked.

"Here"—the Raja turned and pointed to the statuette—"is her portrait on the mantelpiece—much admired by connoisseurs. I need not say that. I am far from sharing the popular illusion. Your arrival is of course the merest coincidence—for me, a charming coincidence. But my people hold unphilosophical views. I understand that even in England the vulgar are apt to see the Finger of Providence in particularly fortunate—or unfortunate—occurrences."

ALASKA PAYS TRIBUTE TO FLIERS

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Mar. 7—(U.P.)—With motors of American and Russian planes droning a dirge over the northland, the bodies of Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland came home today to be claimed by their relatives and to receive the homage of Alaska.

Ole Eielson and Mrs. Borland, father and widow of the two who were killed in a flight to the motorship Nanuk at North Cape, Siberia, Nov. 9, saw the planes—with motors cut to slow cadence—drop gently from a leaden sky with the remains of their loved ones.

The craft left Ruby this morning on the last flight of their cortege, and landed here almost four months to a day after Eielson and Borland took off from Nome on their fatal flight.

Elaborate funeral services will be held here before the bodies are sent to the United States for burial.

Flags at Fairbanks have flown at half mast for days in honor of the dead flyers. The services will be in charge of the American Legion and Pioneers of Alaska. Ben Eielson and his father both are honorary members of the latter organization. The father was elected following his arrival from his home in North Dakota.

A guard of honor from the American Legion immediately was placed over the bodies and it will be maintained until they are sent to the United States.

Gallant Russians who had toiled in the bitter cold for weeks, side by side with the American flyers seeking the two aviators, were part of the escort arriving today. They were greeted warmly by those who gathered about the planes.

Taft Reported Slightly Better

WASHINGTON, Mar. 7—(U.P.)—Former Chief Justice Taft was resting comfortably tonight, still sustaining the slight improvement that was noted in his condition during the day.

His physicians reported he had taken some nourishment. However, they emphasized the fact that any changes in his condition are "almost negligible."

3 MISSING IN OIL EXPLOSIONS

KEARNEY, N. J., Mar. 7—(U.P.)—Three men were missing tonight after two explosions occurred on board the Pure Oil company's No. 5 barge which was moored at the company's pier. Four men were believed to have been aboard the craft at the time, and only one was known to have been rescued.

The barge caught fire after the explosion and was towed away from the docks to prevent spread of the blaze to nearby piers and lacquer barges.

Louis Larson, deckhand, the only man known to have escaped, was thrown heavily to the barge after each explosion, but in his half dazed condition he reached and turned off two valves connecting the barge with the main gasoline reservoir, containing several million gallons of gasoline.

A westerly wind saved the oil plant from destruction. About 100,000 gallons of oil were in he barge.

The missing men were Thomas Smith, Newark, N. J., yardmaster of the oil company; Harry Lee, who lived on the boat, and Eyvind Nord, Brooklyn, N. Y. Capt. H. Nilson, in charge of the barge, was not on board when the explosion occurred.

Farm Members Of Congress To Aid Board

WASHINGTON, March 7.—UP—Indication that the farm members of congress would aid in and not hinder the federal farm board in its present policy was given today after the senate agriculture committe heard testimony of Agriculture Secretary Hyde and Farm Board Chairman Legge on the Nye resolution to inquire into the policy of the board.

The committee deferred a vote until tomorrow and Nye, republican, North Dakota indicated he might not press for adoption of his resolution if it would harass the board. Legge is understood not to have opposed the Nye resolution but to have expressed his opinion it might cause the board some embarrassment.

Nye's inquiry would be directed particularly into the question whether the grain trade has hindered the farm board's action.
